Szánthó portrays a bather seated against a deep, dark background. Light across the figure and pale drapery draws attention to the turn of the head and the arrangement of the arms. Szánthó was born in Szeged in 1897 and turned to painting after an early interest in music. Women figure throughout her work, from dancers in costume to bathing studies such as this one. Here the drapery catches the light around the seated figure while the dark ground sets off th…
